

Amennone Cero

It comes down to this. It is illegal to use a legal name. Did you have something to do with the creation or registration of the legal name you use and evidenced by the birth certificate? Do you have a party interest in the legal name or the legal birth certificate associated with that legal name? Do you realize that legal is all about contract thus precision is of the utmost importance? Not signatory to the legal birth docs? Then you are not a legal party to that document/agreement/contract implied or expressed. Your utilization of legal docs (birth certificate) to which you have zero interest expressed makes you a third party interloper, a trespasser upon another's property, a thief, and a fraudster. By your actions you are known.