Res ipsa loquitur - "the thing speaks for itself"

Principles need not be proved to anyone for they speak for themselves

This assumptive and presumptive society MUST come to an end. Cops are getting killed, people are getting killed, children are being killed, not because of a crime or any harm being committed, but because individuals are being bribed in the form of a paycheck and lifestyle and a thought process to attack ANYONE who APPEARS to not be following corporate codes, rules and statutes as applies only to them, those who are under oath and contract and consent to be a public servant

Under what principle do you have the right to impose presumptive laws on life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness of those living peacefully and causing no harm to another's life or property?

Those who willfully CHOOSE to be under contract of course should be held accountable, but the multitudes that don't even know a contract exists and those of us who knowingly opt out of Legal Land...

...leave us the fuck alone!! Stop putting lives in danger over a fucking POLICY!!

The entire fucking UNIVERSE thanks you!
